REMARKS.—From the 16th of March to the 15th of April, the winds reigned from the North to the North East, with only a few interruptions; and during the whole of this period, there was a penetrating chilliness in the atmosphere, with intervals of rain, of mist and of snow, which rendered those thirty days peculiarly tedious to Invalids, and to those of delicate nerves A protracted coldness on the coast of the Atlantic with northerly winds at this season of the year generally proves that there is snow in the interior of the country, and is the usual accompaniment of a backward spring.—Men, if is believed, are mostly governed by their interests, and yet we hear them every day complain of the lateness of the season.—For our part we tremble at the appearance of early springs because, like precocious boys, they often deceive our hopes.—We recollect the observation of an aged farmer of Narragansett.—'When my Orchards are not in full bloom before the 25th of May, begin to think of providing barrels in plenty.'

It is proper here to note, that an attentive farmer will in March and April examine his fruit trees, and destroy those sacks of eggs, which if neglected, will cover the foliage with caterpillars.—The injury caused by this vermine does not cease with the season of its depredations; for it not only withers the beauty of the trees, and diminishes the quantity, and affects the quality of the fruit for that year, but there is a languor of vegetation perceivable for several years after. A flourishing and beautiful tree, is a grand object of admiration for every man of taste and feeling; but a tree covered with caterpillars, is an object of disgust to every one; is a standing reproach to the owner, and every traveller passes on regretting so much inexcusable negligence, and as he journeys on, he gives the farmer and his country a bad name.

The Brief REMARKER.

IN the polite world, forms of speech are used, which are not intended to be understood according to their obvious meaning.—For instance, when one writes to another, your humble servant, or your most obedient, or "I have not the honor to clean the boots of the person addressed, or do him any humble service at all; but merely to give him to know that he is ready and willing to yield him obedience in all cases whatsoever.—It is hardly worth while, however, to be flush upon this topic, as the aforesaid forms of speech have almost come to be obsolete, at least in the United States.—Pledges of humble service and passive obedience, formally given in the interchange of civilities, are now so rare in this country, as they once were common. This is no matter of regret: For it is not a flower that has been plucked up, but a weed.

There is one other form of words, which seems to have come into general abuse, over this whole country; and the more to the pity, as these last are words of grave import, as well as obvious sense: I mean the phrase so abundantly used:—I promise to pay. In other times, these words were passed with timid caution, and when passed, they were held sacred; but they are now coming to be words of mere form, meaning nothing, very like, the old complimentary phrases—Your humble servant—Your most obedient. Not but that the promisor always interprets the text, as of old, according to its literal or expressed meaning. But the promisor perverts the text, that he may accommodate it to his own beloved lax notions; or rather, after the Romish doctrine of mental reservation, he mentally interposes the word never—making it read thus: I promise (never) to pay.

It would be endless, to recount all the mischiefs that are flowing in upon society, from this prevailing heresy; nor is it needful, since the most of them are too obvious to escape notice.—Wherefore, not to mention the sore disappointments, the indignant heart-burnings, daily arising in ten thousand instances from this single source; nor yet to mention its destructive influence upon all confidence between man and man; passing over these topics, and others akin to them, I shall consider the matter merely as it affects the interests of the delinquent party.

Be it supposed, that he is a man possessed of several estimable qualities; that he has a large stock, of what is called good-nature; that he is obliging and compassionate; that in the main, he is a moral man; and finally, that there is no apparent blemish in his character save this one alone.—Give the delinquent all these good qualities; and yet "the dead fly in the precious ointment," spoils the whole compound.

There is a smack of immorality, in every instance of voluntary word-breaking; and in this, as in every other vice, one step naturally leads to another.—The good-natured man, who has neglected to fulfil his promise, is loth to cast a blame him for so doing, and if he cannot find one, he makes one. This can hardly be done, for the first or second time, without a considerable struggle with moral principle. But it soon becomes tractable, and as natural almost as to breathe. In the process of this ill-habit, he quite loses his moral feelings, its regard for strict veracity; and, almost every day he lives, he deals in fiction, without any sort of compunction.

Neither is this all, he is the occasion of falsehood in others. He steps over to one of his neighbours, to borrow. His neighbour respects him for his sundry good qualities, but knows well the particular infirmity of his character. He is loth to lose his friend, and quite as loth to hazard his money. What does he do? Why, he proceeds to frame fictitious excuses: "I am very sorry, Sir, that it is not in my power to oblige you. There is no man living that I should be more ready to serve; but—but—lie and all."

The man that makes it his general practice to shuffle off, as much as possible, the payment of his honest debts, not only forfeits all claims upon the confidence of society, but loses a main portion of self-respect.—He often meets his fellow-beings, with whom he cannot so much as interchange the customary salutation, without enduring the feelings of self abasement; and in conversing with whom, he is compelled, as it were, to have recourse to prevarication and quibble.

And what does he gain in his secular affairs? Nothing at all. He is a loser even there. If he frequently suffers the compulsory process of law, he is a ruined man. Or if he procrastinates till he has quite exhausted the patience of his creditors, and then pays, in appearance, rather to avoid the expence of law, than from honest principles, still he loses that credit, which to his secular affairs might be an incalculable benefit; and, in seasons of pressing emergency, if he have not sufficient resources in himself, he can find them no where.

A strict regard to one's word or promise is one of the first of social virtues: and young men who are entering, or have just entered the threshold of business, would do well to keep in memory the following Maxims:—Be as careful of getting, as of using credit.—Never run in debt, beyond what you have a reasonable certainty, or at least a reasonable prospect, of being able to pay in season.—Never defer payment when it is needed, and it is in your power to make it.

By the Mails.

GEORGIA.

MILLEDGEVILLE, APRIL 27.

WE learn, that a deputation of Indians, from some of the tribes, went into St. Augustine, on last Monday week, with an Interpreter, for the purpose of ascertaining, from the Governor, whether it was his wish, or advisable for them, to take up arms against the white inhabitants, and attack the frontier, or no;—and whether they should oppose the forces under Gen. Jackson.—The Governor returned for answer, that it was his decided wish that they should not take up arms, or make the least resistance to any of the United States troops, should they even enter any of their towns.—He requested them to return home, and adhere to his advice; and enjoined on them the necessity of giving up, forthwith, the Negroes that are with them, who have either been stolen or ran away from their owners, in Georgia and elsewhere.—The number of fugitives with the Indians are supposed to be between two and three hundred.—Provisions are scarce and high in Augustine; and the inhabitants of that place are apprehensive of a visit from Gen. Jackson.

April 25.

Indian War.

We have just received information, that the two Chehaw Indian Towns on Flint River, were attacked last Thursday, by a detachment of Georgia militia, commanded by Capt. Wright. The towns were burnt, and a number of Indians killed, our informant says about 50. The detachment did not loose a man, and had but one wounded.

M'Intosh, in the late battle, killed with his own hand, three of the enemy—this fact is communicated by Mr. Wm. S. Mitchell, (son of the Agent) in a letter to his father.

VIRGINIA.

PETERSBURG, MAY 8.

Success of the Patriots.

A letter from the neighborhood of the Carraccas, to a gentleman in this town, dated April 4th, says—"We have news here, that the patriots have gained a decisive victory over the royalists on the main, under Morillo, and that Bolivar was marching upon the city of Carraccas."

The correctness of the foregoing information may be relied upon, and fully confirms the previous accounts from the Spanish Maine, received at several northern ports.

COLUMBIA.

WASHINGTON, MAY 6.

We are informed, from a respectable source, that orders have recently been issued by our government, for the establishment of a military post at the mouth of Yellow-stone River, (latitude 48) where it enters the Missouri, about 1800 miles above St. Louis. The contemplated object of this post, it is stated, is to controul the communication of the Indian nations within the boundaries of the territories of the United States with the North-West and Hudson's Bay companies: To keep open the line of communication betwixt Fort Clarke, (at present the highest military post on the Missouri,) and the intended settlement at the mouth of Yellow-stone River, it is conjectured that two additional intermediate posts will be necessary; that is to say, one at the Great Bend, and the other at the Mandan villages, about 150 miles from, and due south of, the British Factory, at the mouth of Moose river, where it enters the Assiniboin. Thus a complete check might be given to all attempts at violating the laws, prohibiting the British from trading with the Indian nations within our boundaries: This is rendered the more essential at the present moment, in order to curb the views of the aspiring and ambitious Selkirk, who has of late years given such a bold direction to the affairs of the Fur-Trade Companies.*

Major Bradford, with a detachment of 200 rifle-men, is said to be ordered to repair to his point, where a fort will be immediately constructed. The Missisouri Traders will thereby, in future, be protected from Indian hostility and British interference in their lawful pursuits within the proper jurisdiction of the United States.

* During Lord Selkirk's visit at Washington last winter, he is said to have requested permission of the government, to draw his supplies of provisions, for the use of the North-West and Hudson's Bay companies, from the United States territories; which proposal, we hear, was immediately rejected.

It is stated that the duties received at the Custom-House of New-Orleans will be more than sufficient to enable the United States to pay for Louisiana before the payments for that country become due.

MARYLAND.

BALTIMORE, MAY 8.

The Mail Robbers.

The Circuit Court of the United States for Maryland District commenced its session in this city on the first instant, present, Judges Duvall and Houston. Indictments were found by the Grand Jury against William Alexander, Lewis Hare, Joseph Hare and Thomas Hare, charging them with the robbery of the mail, of the 18th March last, near Havre-de-Grace.—These indictments, we learn, charge the prisoners with using weapons which endangered the life of the carrier of the mail; convictions on them will therefore subject the prisoners to the sentence of death.—The 3 first named were arraigned on Saturday last, and being called on, in the usual way to answer the charges, pleas were filed for each; but, on the application of their counsel suggesting that more time was necessary to decide on the proper pleas and prepare them, the court permitted the pleas to be withdrawn.

Yesterday being the day appointed to receive the pleas, the prisoners were brought into Court and being again called on to answer, they remained silent, or, in the law language, stood mute. The court, after some discussion between the District Attorney and the Counsel for the prisoners, directed that the plea of not guilty should be entered for each of them, and appointed Saturday next for their trial.

We understand that W. Wirt, Esq. Attorney General of the United States, has come on at the instance of the Postmaster General, to prosecute the culprits indicted for the robbery of the mail.

The section of the act of Congress, of 1810, under which they have been indicted, declares that for the first offence the robbers of the mail shall suffer death, if in effecting the robbery they should wound the mail carrier, or put his life in jeopardy, by the use of dangerous weapons.

May 9.

This day at ten o'clock having been appointed by the Circuit Court for the trial of the persons charged with robbing the mail, Joseph T. Hare was brought into Court and at the time appointed placed at the bar.

General Winder, on behalf of the prisoner, having associated with the counsel named yesterday, applied to the Court to postpone the trial till Monday. The Attorney General represented that a number of persons were attending as witnesses to whom the delay would cause great inconvenience. The court said, that every reasonable indulgence had already been granted to the prisoners, and ordered that the trial should progress.—The counsel for the prisoner then stated that they could not take on themselves the responsibility of conducting the defence of the prisoner without more time for preparation, and that they declined further interference on his behalf. The jury was sworn by order of the Court and the trial progressing at the time of writing this article.

NEW-YORK.

NEW-YORK, MAY 9.

By the schooner Allegro, the Editors of the Mercantile Advertiser received yesterday, the Savannah papers of the 1st inst. A gentleman had arrived there, who left St. John's on the preceding Saturday, and reported that a party of Indians had recently killed six men and wounded several others at M'Girt's Creek, about 30 miles up St. John's river. The inhabitants in that quarter were much alarmed. We copy from the papers the following account of Another Indian Battle.

From the Milledgeville Journal April 27

Copy of a letter from General M'Intosh, commanding the Creek Warriors, to B. D. Mitchell, Esq. Agent for Indian Affairs:

Camp, 20 miles from Mickasukin on the way to Swannee, April 13. 1818

Sir—Since I have left you, I have not sent you a talk of what we have done and I now send you this. I heard yesterday of Peter M'Quen being near the road we were travelling, and I took my warriors and went out and fought him. There seemed to be a considerable number collected there. When we first began to fight them, they were in a bad swamp, and fought us for about an hour, when they ran and we followed them three hours.—We killed 37 of them, and took 98 woman and children, and 6 men, prisoners, and about 700 head of cattle, and a number of horses, with a good many hogs, and some corn. We lost 3 killed, and had 5 wounded. Our prisoners tell us that there was 120 warriors, from 8 different towns.—From what we saw, I believe there was more than they say, as some of our prisoners say there was 200 of them.—Tom Woodward, and Mr. Brown, and your son our agent, and all the white men that live in our country, were with us through the whole fight, and fought well. All my officers fought so well, I do not know which was the bravest. They all fought like men, and ran their enemies. Gen. Jackson waited for us about 6 miles from where we fought. After the fight, I went and joined him, and we are going this morning to fight the negroes together. They are at Suwannee, and we shall be there in 4 days. There was among the hostiles a woman that was in the boat when our friends, the white people, were killed on the river below fort Scott. We gave her to her friends—her husband and father are with General Jackson.—Major Linnard took her himself. This is all I have to tell you. I wish you would send a copy of this to the Big Warrior, and Little Prince.

Your friend.

WM. M'INTOSH.

BOSTON, MAY 14.

A Great Sea Serpent!

The following is a very interesting account of the Sea Serpent seen on Saturday last. The respectability of the source of the annexed Certificates, places the matter beyond a doubt—and we think Capt. Woodward has had a more minute view of this Serpent, than it was possible for any one to have had of the one seen last Summer off Cape Ann.

AFFIDAVIT.

I, Joseph Woodward, Master of the sch'r Adamant, of Hingham, on my passage from Penobscot to Hingham, on Saturday last, at 2 o'clock P. M. Agementicus bearing W. N. W ten leagues distance, discovered something on the surface of the water, apparently about about the size of a ship's long boat.—Supposing it to be the wreck of some vessel, I made towards it; and on approaching it, to my surprise and that of my crew, discovered it to be a monstrous Sea Serpent—as we approached him, he threw himself into a coil* and darted himself forward with amazing velocity—the wind being ahead, it became necessary to stand on the other tack, and as we approached him again, he threw himself into a coil as before, and came across our bows at not more than sixty feet distance.

Having a gun charged with a ball and shot, I discharged the contents of it at his head. The ball and shot were distinctly heard to strike him and rebound as though fired against a rock—he, however, shook his head and tail most terribly—he again threw himself into a coil and came towards us with his mouth wide open. In the mean time, I had charged my gun again and intended to have discharged the contents of it into his mouth; but he came so near us, I was fearful of the consequences, and withheld it—he came close under the bows of the Schooner and, had she not been kept away, must have come on board of us—he sunk down under the vessel, his head a considerable distance on one side the vessel and his tail the other—he played around us about five hours—I and my crew had probably the best opportunity of seeing him that has occurred—I judge him to be, at the least, twice the length of my Sch'r, say one hundred and thirty feet—his head was about the size of a ship's long boat, say fourteen feet—his body, below the neck, at least, six feet diameter—his head was large in proportion to his body—his tail was formed like a squid's—his body was of a dark color and resembled the joints of a shark's back bone—his gills were about twelve feet from the end of his head, and his whole appearance was most terrific.

His manner of throwing himself into a coil appeared to be done by contracting his body in a number of places in perpendicular directions, and placing his tail so as to throw himself forward with great force—he could contract and throw himself in any direction with apparently the greatest ease and most astonishing celerity.

Having read the above statement of Capt Woodward, we certify to the correctness of it.

Personally appeared, Joseph Woodward, Peter Holmes and John Mayo and made oath, that the above statement by them subscribed is just and true—before me.

* The word "coil" does not exactly represent the idea of the Serpent's appearance; but from a more particular description given by Capt. Woodward, it was of an undulatory appearance.

American Navigation Law.

When the late Navigation-Law, as it is denominated, was before Congress, it was stated, we believe, by Mr. Forsyth, that the British Colonial System, a retaliation of which was intended by the Act—was peculiarly hostile to American commerce. This was doubted by many who imagined that the policy was general, equally affecting all foreign powers. We were of this opinion, and were informed on what we considered good authority, that such was the case; and that the British Navigation Act, which laid the foundation of that System, passed in the reign of one of the Charles's, within half a century of the colonization of the now United States.—A writer in the Palladium, entertaining the same sentiments, called upon Mr. Forsyth to establish [illegible]. Mr. F. being absent from Washington, some one, supposed to have a perfect knowledge of the subject, has answered for him, the following statement, which has been published in the National Intelligencer of the 9th inst.

"The Act of the British Parliament of 27th June, 1806, consolidating the former Acts on the subject, admits into the West-Indian ports a variety of articles, wool, cotton, tobacco, specie, &c. the produce of any colony or country in America, "belonging to or under the dominion of any foreign European Sovereign or State," in any foreign single-decked vessels, "being owned and navigated by persons inhabiting any of the said colonies or plantations in America, or countries on the continent of America, belonging to or under the dominion of any foreign European Sovereign or State."—The privilege of re-exportation of all imported articles, except naval stores, and of exporting rum, is granted in the same Act, in the same terms, to the complete exclusion of the vessels of the United States, in all cases from that trade.

"The title of another Act which has been before us, amendatory of that just referred to, sufficiently explains its objects.—It is "An Act to permit the importation of rice, grain and flour, from any FOREIGN COLONIES on the continent of America, into certain ports in the West-Indies; and to allow certain articles to be imported from the United States of America INTO THE BRITISH PROVINCES in North-America, for the purpose of exportation to THE BRITISH ISLANDS in the West-Indies."—Thus in the very same section of the Act, a full permission is given to import into the West-Indies, articles, without which they cannot subsist, from other countries of America; whilst from the United States the same articles may not be imported, except in cases of absolute danger of famine, and then only circuitously through the British Northern Provinces; in order that our navigation may not have the advantage of carrying to them, even the articles which are to keep them from starving."

New Law.

By a law which passed at the last session of Congress, it is provided, that after the 30th day of June next, the bonds for duties on imports, consisting of the "produce of foreign places or islands situated on the eastern shores of America, north of the equator or its adjacent seas, bays and gulfs, salt excepted," shall be made payable in six and nine months; and bonds for duties on goods, wares and merchandize, except wine, salt, and that "imported from any other place than Europe and the West-Indies," shall be made payable in equal instalments in eight, ten and eighteen months.

Curious Incident.

A Norfolk paper mentions the following, related by several gentlemen, while going up James' River in a Steam boat.—In passing Day's Point they observed an Eagle, which, after hovering about the shore for some time, made a sudden dart into the water, where he remained, out of sight, about two seconds, and then re-appeared bearing in his talons a Fish, apparently three feet in length.—In a minute or two, however, he plunged again into the water, and again appeared with his prey. This operation he repeated a second time, still holding the fish in his claws; a third time he descended with it, but was seen no more! The conjecture was that the Eagle had got his talons so deeply inserted in his scaly prize that he could not extricate them, and his strength was not adequate to bear it away to the shore.

The New-York Commercial Advertiser, after mentioning the above, adds, "The probability is that the Eagle had entangled its talons in the vertebrae of a fish, which proved too heavy to be supported until it could reach the land, and thereby lost its life, is corroborated by the following instance, related to Mr. Scudder, proprietor of the American Museum in this city:—

"In 1801 or 2, an Albany sloop, becalmed, was gently drifting on her passage through the Highlands; an Eagle was observed in the river, fluttering its wings in vain efforts to rise. Some hands in the boat rowed off, and, with a line cast round the body of the Eagle, drew it alongside and took it safely on board, together with a large Bass, that weighed thirty three pounds, into which it had struck its talons, which became so inserted between the joints, of the vertebrae as to prevent extrication.—The Eagle (of the bald species) was brought alive to this city, and was purchased by Mr Savage, who at that time kept a Museum which Mr. Scudder attended."

The New-York Advertiser has commenced the publication of a series of numbers, vindicating the character of General Putnam from the aspersions thrown out in Gen Dearborn's account of the battle of Bunker Hill.

General Dawson, of Bertie county, North-Carolina, charged with the murder of his own son, a very promising youth, of 9 years of age, was found guilty, and was to be executed on the 23d inst.

NEWPORT,

Saturday, May 16, 1818.

From Rio Janeiro.

We learn by Capt. Wood, of the Brig Catherine, who arrived here on Tuesday last in 63 days from Rio Janeiro, that the American Commissioners who went out in the Congress Frigate, were not presented to the King during their stay at Rio Janeiro, nor were they present at his coronation.—Mr. Sumpter, our Minister at the Court of Brazil attended the coronation by special invitation.

A few days before the sailing of the Congress, Capt. Sinclair was presented to the King, at his request, in consequence of a contention having taken place in the street between several officers of the Congress and the Police; the officers having detained a Portuguese sailor belonging to the Congress, who had deserted from that ship, and the Police officers interfered to prevent them.

From Jacquemel.

Capt. Mayberry, of the brig Mason's Daughter, who arrived at Wilmington, (N. C.) on the 2d inst. in 17 days from Jacquemel, St. Domingo, brings a report, that Petion, President of Hayti, was assassinated. There is probably no truth in the rumor, as the account of his death as published in the papers of Port-au-Prince, where he resided, states, that he died of a fever of about six days continuance.

Capt. M also informs, that, on the 13th of April, "The Mexican privateer sch'r Florida Libra was lying off and on, getting provisions—the captain of the privateer informed, that Commodore Aury was then off Samana, with four sail besides the Mexican Congress; and that he was then in pursuit of the Brutus, Capt. Jolly, to assist in taking said Island. The Florida Libra was a tender to Commodore Aury's fleet. The Brutus was, at that time, at Aquain, with two Spanish prizes."

Death of Christophe.

A letter from an American gentleman resident at Port au Prince, to his friend in Norfolk, dated 13th April, after speaking of the death of Petion, says, in a postscript—"We have just received authentic information of the death of Christophe."

Revolutionary Soldiers.

The following Letter from the War Department, respecting the Pensions to Revolutionary Soldiers, &c. was written to some person in Philadelphia.

War Department, Pension Office, April 4, 1818.

SIR,—I am directed by the Secretary of War to thank you for the communication of the 25th ult. and to remark, that the claims of all those applying for pensions under the late law, will at once be refused, unless it shall be certified by the judge, from his own knowledge, or otherwise, that they shall be in reduced circumstances—and absolutely need the assistance of the country for their support.

With real respect, I am Sir, your most obedient servant,

G. BOYD.

Mr. BENNETT H WHEELER, of Providence who was appointed at the recent session of the General Assembly Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas for the County of Providence, has declined accepting that appointment.

Capt. William E. Baxter, of the British brig Enterprise, for whose apprehension a reward of Five Hundred Dollars was offered by the Marine Insurance Company of Norfolk, was apprehended at Elizabeth City on the 30th ult.—Capt. B. after sailing from Charleston, proceeded to Newbern, where he left the brig and came to Elizabeth City in the steam-boat.

Extract of a letter from Halifax.

The non intercourse act of your Congress, in all probability, will be retaliated on the part of Britain, by driving the American fishermen, sealers, whalers, &c. entirely from the British waters, both in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, which, as it respects the Nova-Scotia waters, St Lawrence, and Labrador coast, would be injurious to our settlements at the out-ports.—Bos. Pat.

Abolition of the Slave-Trade with a witness!

In 1817, Congress passed a law to prohibit the importation of Slaves, and directed the Legislatures of the several States to make provision for the disposition of any of them who might be brought into the country contrary to the law—A cargo of these unfortunates have recently been brought into Louisiana; and what think ye, courteous reader, was the "disposition" made of them by the Legislature of Louisiana, composed of men who profess to be the champions of Liberty and Equality?—They have passed a law, directing them, first, to be committed to jail, and then have authorized the Sheriff to sell them as Slaves for life!

Boston Centinel.

Exports of Savannah.

By a statement, extracted from the Custom-House Books, and published in the Savannah Museum, it appears, that no less than 61,727 bales of Cotton, 18,480 tierces of Rice, and 1500 hhds. of Tobacco, were exported from Savannah, from the 1st of October to the 31st of March last.—The value of these exports is estimated at Six Millions, two hundred and sixty four thousand, six hundred and ninety seven dollars.

It is stated in the Salem Register, that the Hon. Mr. Crowninshield, secretary of the Navy, was sick at Washington, "with some alarming complaints, but at the last dates he was upon the recovery."

The severe thunder storm of the 6th inst. appears to have been extensive.—At Baltimore, the lightning struck the roof of a two-story brick house at the head of Bond-street, occupied by a black man and his family. The lightning descended to the second story, where it struck the woman and three children in bed, and burnt them severely. The man who was sitting a short distance from the bed was very much burnt, and remained lifeless for nearly half an hour.

The Weather.

The Albany Gazette of the 7th inst. states, that "on Monday and Tuesday, the 4th and 5th of May, considerable Snow fell on the Highlands; and that on the latter day it laid four inches deep in Stephentown. The water continues quite high in the Hudson, and it is supposed much Snow still remains at its sources"

A letter from Quebec, of the last of April, mentions, that they were making preparations to plant the famous May Pole in the ice of the St. Lawrence, opposite the city, on the ensuing day.

Several cases have occurred at New-York, of persons writing on the walls of houses and other public places the names of respectable citizens, and connecting with it "obscene language or gross falshood" The city papers speak in strong terms against this dastardly mode of libelling.

Longevity.

The following remarkable instance of longevity, is copied from the "Observer," published at Fayetteville, North-Carolina:—"Died, in Richmond County, on the 12th of April, THOMAS HATHCOCK, aged One Hundred and Twenty-five Years!—He left a numerous family of children settled in different parts of the country, two of whom live in the State of Georgia, one aged ninety-three, and the other eighty-seven, and one son in Richmond County, but little rising sixteen years!"

New Species of Villainy.

The Orange (N Y.) Patriot, gives an ingenious attempt of villainy:—A laboring man, named John Polly, who had for some years past been employed near the village of Chester, being in search of a more eligible situation, desired letters of recommendation. One was drawn up and presented to three gentlemen of responsibility.—Their signatures were obtained to the letters, which went to show, that Polly was a poor, steady, frugal, industrious man;—one who had obtained their confidence, and was worthy of employment A thought struck the mind of Polly, that Orange county bank bills would pass much more readily, and contribute to his immediate support and comfort with a greater degree of certainty, than would the useless names of his friends and well-wishers. Accordingly he cut them from the paper, and upon the back of which he drew a note in his own name payable at the Bank of Orange County, for Seven hundred and fifty Dollars. The note was presented and discounted at the Bank.—Flushed with this signal success, another recommendatory paper was immediately got up, and signatures in an adjoining neighbourhood obtained.—He cut, wrote and applied this paper as he had the former one, with this difference, he drew a note payable at the Bank of Newburg, for Five hundred and fifty Dollars—obtained the money, and left the Banks to accommodate the payment with his incredulous endorsers.

At Halifax, on the 10th of April last, Mrs. SUSANNAH HALIBURTON, widow of the Hon. John Haliburton, of Halifax, and daughter of the late Jabez Bruster, Esq. of this town, aged 72 years.—"Her decay was gradual; and she closed a life, of amiable piety, in faith, and hope, and peace; enjoying the object of her earnest prayer, that she might not be "suffered at her last hour, from any pains of death, to fall from that Saviour, in whom she had believed and trusted."

Missions of the United Brethren.

IN consequence of the publication of the Rev. C. J. LATROBE's Address in favor of the Missions of the Protestant Church of the United Brethren (otherwise called Moravians) in Vol. 3d, No. 10, of the Christian Herald, and the appeal which was made to the religious public in the following number, nearly Two Hundred Dollars have been received by myself and others, from different parts of the U. S. towards carrying on this important work.—The kind donors will please to accept the best thanks of the United Brethren for their liberality towards them on this occasion; but the printing the list of contributors is deferred, in the hope that as the established character and present wants of the Brethren's missions are more generally known among other Christians, the list will still be increased. The United Brethren are proceeding with unabated vigour in the important cause of sending the Gospel to the benighted Heathen, and of forming missionary stations among them.—The debt which they have thus contracted for this purpose, still amounts, it is believed, to about Twenty Thousand Dollars more than they alone have it at present in their power to liquidate.

Subscriptions and Donations towards the support of the United Brethren, will be thankfully received by the Ministers of their Congregations; particularly by the Rev. Christian F. Schaeff, Bethlehem, Pennsylvania; the Rev. William H. Van Vleck, Philadelphia; and the Rev. GRONAU C. MILLER, at Newport, Rhode-Island; and by

POETRY.

PURSUIT OF HEALTH.

FROM SELOE'S MISCELLANIES.

'Twas April morn, I oft had heard
Of the sweet month of flowers and birds,
So early rose to taste the bliss
That waits the happy lover's kiss.
Fresh from Aurora's milky bed,
Where all the hours, sweet sisters, tread
The light fantastic toe, and sing
Responsive to the laughing spring,
Bedeck'd with all the pride of May,
Sweet Flora hail'd the infant day.
Her locks, in which the pearly dew
Like diamonds shone, of auburn hue,
Beneath her crimson bonnet blue.
Her eye, as sloe, as black, as keen,
Where sly Cupid oft was seen,
Now wanton'd with a mischief sly,
Now languish'd with a melting sigh.
Her lips, more than the cherry dyed,
Where sweets in ambush seem to hide,
Like violets in the vernal wood,
Where Philomel oft tunes her song,
Or like the rose-bud in the bower,
Where Venus holds her evening hour,
To which the bee, with murmuring sound,
Oft loves to wing his way around,
Or on the bosom rests to dream
Of Cytherea's balmy stream.
Her graceful form, more fair than day,
More soft than the new mown hay,
When breathing sweets at early dawn,
Bathed in the tears of Roscid morn,
Her polished neck, her rounded arm,
Where every grace and beauty warm
With all the charms that can inspire
The heart to love, the soul to fire,
Her swelling breast, her taper waist,
Her dimpled hand, her slender foot,
Her air majestic, mien genteel,
Her motion each a step to reel,
In shape and beauty the Cyprian queen,
In virgin purity Hebe seen,
In manners gentle, kind and free,
The lively mien of Modesty,
In all the heart could wish combined,
In all the soul could fancy find,
In all the nymph could hope to see,
In all the maid could wish to be,
Was Flora, as she tripp'd along,
Graceful as Zephyr, light as song.

Her eye, that roll'd in every glance
Ten thousand darts of heavenly France,
Now languish'd on the primrose pale,
Now sparkled on the lily's veil,
Now wanton'd on the violet blue,
Now fix'd on the carnation's hue,
Now roved the vernal flowers among,
And wish'd for you in yonder grove.

"Hark! you may hear her cherub voice,
The voice of HEALTH is sweet and clear;
See, you may hear the birds rejoice,
In symphony, her arbour near."

I ran, and hastened to the grove,
With eager steps and anxious mind
To see, the elfin's truth to prove,
And hop'd the promis'd nymph to find.

My fairy took me by the hand,
And cheerfully we stepp'd along;
We stopp'd, but on the new plough'd land,
To hear the russet woodlark's song.

We rush'd the grove, I look'd around,
My fairy was no longer near;
But her voice I knew the sound,
For thus she whisper'd in my ear:—

"The nymph, fair Health, you came to find,
Within these precincts loves to dwell;
Her breath now fills the balmy wind;
This path will lead you to her cell."

I bended to the primrose low,
And ask'd if Health might there reside;
She left me," said the flower, "but now
For yonder violets purple pride."

I question'd next the violet's queen,
Where sparrow Health was to be found;
She told me, that she late was seen,
With cowslips, toying on the ground.

I thrice I kiss'd the cowslip's pale,
And in their dew-drops bath'd my face;
I told them all my tender tale,
And begg'd their aid, coy Health to trace.

I question'd a modest lowly flower,
Which long had many a day been
Where the roots within the bower,
Where yonder hawthorn blooms alone."

I left the bower, I ran, I flew,
But yet no nymph I there could find;
The breeze of morning blew,
And spring was gay, and Flora kind.

I return'd cadate and slow,
For if the nymph I could not see;
The breath that pass'd along my brow,
Was proof of her divinity.

I will her votary to prove,
And still her dulcet smiles to share;
I'll haunt the fields, I'll haunt the grove,
With unremitted steps, and fondest care.

500 Dollars REWARD.

Office of the Marine Insurance Company of Norfolk, 22d April, 1818.

ON or about the 11th of the last month the BRITISH BRIG ENTERPRIZE, WILLIAM E. BAXTER, Master, sailed from the Island of Trinidad, laden with a Cargo of Sugar and Molasses, shipped by Mr JOHN HUNTER of that Island, and consigned to Messrs. MOSES MYERS & SONS of this place. About the 7th of this month the Enterprize arrived at Charleston, without any cause of distress being stated in the account of her arrival, letters for other Merchants of this place, which came by the Vessel, were received by Mail, but none by the Consignees. The Charleston Courier of the 8th inst. contained an advertisement of the Sale of the Cargo at Auction, by Messrs. THOMAS NAPIER & Co.—and on the 16th, the Enterprize cleared from Charleston for Edenton. This day Messrs. Myers & Sons received a letter from the above named Mr. Hunter, advising the Shipment of the Cargo, and stating that a duplicate Invoice and second Bill of Lading, would be sent on in a few days, by a vessel bound to this port.

From the circumstances above stated, no doubt can exist as to the intentions of the Master, and the Cargo having been Insured in the Office of this Company. The President and Directors hereby offer a Reward of

Five HUNDRED DOLLARS

To any person who will secure the said BAXTER so that he may be brought to Justice.—The COLLECTORS of the different Ports in the United States, are respectfully solicited to give any information respecting him that may come to their knowledge. It is confidently hoped, that every honorable person will cheerfully aid in bringing to punishment, a man who has committed a crime particularly injurious to the interests of Commerce; any expense that may be incurred will be thankfully repaid.

It is not expected that the Master intended for Edenton—the clearance for that place being designed to conceal his real destination; it is rather believed that he will go to some Northern Port, or to a Port in Nova Scotia or Newfoundland. The Cargo sold in Trinidad, 6744 Dollars, 10 Cents for about which sum he may be arrested at the suit of Messrs Moses Myers & Sons.

The Enterprize, it is believed, is American built; she entered here in March, 1817, as a Prize. Is One Hundred and Thirty-Seven Tons, and 36 95 ths. Custom-House measurement registered in the name of Thomas Losey, and belongs to Portola.

BAXTER is about 40 years of age, about 5 feet 8 inches high, fair made; he has reputable connexions in Currituck county, North Carolina and though commanding a British vessel, is believed to be an American
